Alerts can help you track your transactions and spot unusual activity. Get notified when anyone makes a purchase or withdrawal from your account — so you can contact us quickly if something doesn't look right. Here are a few of your options:

- Online, phone, or mail purchase: Get alerted when anyone uses your card number to make a purchase online, by phone, or through mail order.
- ATM withdrawal or cash advance: Receive an alert when anyone makes a withdrawal or cash advance from your account at an ATM.
- Single purchase: Be notified when anyone makes a purchase with your debit or credit card that exceeds an amount you set, such as $100.

You can choose to receive alerts by push, text, or email, as available.<sup>1</sup>

Wells Fargo also monitors your accounts and will notify you when your contact information changes, username or password are updated, online access is blocked after multiple failed sign-on attempts, or we detect suspicious activity on your debit or credit card. If you receive an alert from us to confirm a transaction, respond promptly.
